Head of Georgia Chamber Tells How He Will Boost State's Resources

Charles J. Haden, president of the Georgia chamber of commerce, Monday outlined his publicity campaign for Georgia to a number of persons who are interested in the chamber's building. His plans for advertising the state, he people and resources through the medium of moving pictures, with warm approval, and Mr. Haden was given assistance of support in the work. It is the purpose of Mr. Haden to make 10,000 feet of film, showing Georgia on the screen as she really is, instead of the stereotyped view of the state which has been made. He expects that the picture will be completed in the fall, and be sent on its tour of the United States, to enlighten the people of other sections as to the Empire State of the South.

"It is our purpose to exhibit this picture to two million people outside the state," said Mr. Haden, "and we expect of course that all Georgians will see it before it starts on its journey to the country."

Mr. Haden declared that, although the film will not be entirely complete, he plans to show a part of it at the Atlanta chamber of commerce on the evening of September 16, when Governor Harris will speak. He expects that many persons from out of town will be in Atlanta to witness the exhibition.

At the Monday night conference several committees of well known citizens were named to assist in the work including making the film and presenting it in Atlanta.

South Need Not Worry Over Its Cotton Problem

W. P. G. Harding, of the Federal Reserve Board, is Optimistic Over Conditions in the South

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—W. P. Harding, of the Federal Reserve Board, who returned to Washington today after attending a meeting of bankers and merchants at Birmingham, said the outlook was encouraging for caring for the cotton crop.

"I do not believe if conditions remain as at present that the south need worry over the cotton crop," he said. "I found bankers in the south apparently willing to lend money on cotton properly secured, and although I cannot predict what will happen, I do not believe excessive interest will be demanded on such loans."

REAL HOT IF YOU LIKE IT THAT WAY

Natural Vitalitas Will Be Found Wonderfully Beneficial for Many Ills

As a morning draught, fifteen minutes before breakfast, a teaspoonful of liquid Vitalitas in a half glass of hot water has tonic and curative effects different from any other medicinal product. There is nothing else in nature like it and no man-made medicine is to be compared to it. It is pleasant and you know when you take it that it will benefit you.

Vitalitas is usually taken in cold water after meals and at bed time, but many find it more agreeable and its effects more pronounced, particularly as a laxative, by substituting hot water and taking it before meals. Either way the results are wonderfully beneficial for those who suffer with indigestion, sour stomach, biliousness, rheumatism, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood.

Vitalitas is a heavy golden liquid extracted from an earth substance that is rich in chemical properties and forces that are essential to life and health. Multitudes who have failed to find relief in ordinary medicines are being healed and cured by Vitalitas. It is all good.

Talk with the demonstrator and sample Vitalitas at J. O. Bagwell, 23 Whitehall street or write there for information—(Adv.)

OVER-NIGHT BREAK FOREIGN EXCHANGE RATES

Slump in New Orders Expected
Unless Rates Are Rectified Soon

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Foreign exchange rates reached their most serious stage today with an overnight break of two and one-half cents in sterling, the English pound selling in the market at $15.12, close to the mark where a settlement of big foreign orders to the United States would follow, in the opinion of bankers here.

Nothing like the violent break in quotations had ever been recorded in the foreign exchange markets here before. The low level reached today was one and one-half cents below the mark set weeks ago by financiers as the so-called irregular minimum which, when reached, would cause British buyers to place their orders in such small quantities as to be obtained elsewhere than in America.

Profits, manufactured goods and numerous products, in fact, almost everything except actual munitions of war were embraced within this category. Demoralization in the foreign exchange markets was the result of the most chaotic conditions as the result of the break. Dealings in foreign exchange were virtually at a standstill. The market varied as much as a cent were quoted by different banks, but the rates in almost every case, were purely nominal and there was no business worth the same done in English money here today.

The big break means that English money is in addition to the top of the market prices already paid by them in this country for American products are being used to pay munitions and other goods on every pound of purchase more than 5 per cent.

With London carrying this enormous burden, the question discussed in banking circles here today was how long Great Britain would continue to buy here such articles as she was not completely satisfied with.

There is no other world market of importance open, it was pointed out, but more field economy at home in all the reports of articles and purchases from such sources as the United States, Canada, and the West Indies, and the fact that the United States was the only source of supply for the United States.

Not an American contract has yet been secured. It was pointed out, however, that the heavy premium which British buyers must pay gives every indication, in the opinion of local bankers, that the conditions will follow unless rates are rectified soon, and that there will be a decided slump in new orders.

The new record of 4.8-5.3 was the first low record established in the five consecutive business days. Since last Thursday the market has been dropping from 4.6, or 5-5.2, nearly one-half of which was registered when the market closed last night.

Lowest August Temperatures Recorded Today

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Summer's coldest weather was spread today over the northern part of the country from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic and southward well into the states. Warmer weather is in prospect for tomorrow. Lowest temperatures ever recorded in August were reported to the weather bureau generally from the Ohio valley, Indiana, Illinois, eastern Minnesota and Texas. Light frosts occurred during the night in portions of Michigan, Indiana and Illinois.

This August Coldest

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Today marks the coldest of the season in the history of the city. The weather bureau reported that the lowest temperature recorded here was 23 degrees, and August 4 degrees under the average.

Cincinnati Sees Its Coldest August Day
(By Associated Press.)
CINCINNATI, Aug. 31.—This city experienced the coldest August day in its history today. The temperature fell to 23 degrees, the lowest recorded here since 1871.

Atlanta Has Coldest
August in 24 Years
DID YOU shiver last night and dig down deep under the blankets before you could sleep comfortably? Most of Atlanta did. And there was a reason, the coldest August in the history of the city was today.

The mercury in the official bulb of the forecaster's thermometer registered at 5 o'clock 57 degrees. The record for the coldest August mark since then was 55, made in 1891. Tuesday's 57 is the coldest August mark since then.

And the weather man says it's going to get colder Wednesday, perhaps so cold that September will be ushered in with a record day for chilliness. It's going to get colder, and it's also going to rain Wednesday. Chilly winter-like rain.

When asked why this was the weather man spoke of a "high area in the north and west" resulting in lessening to an extent which cannot now be estimated the amount of goods which American sellers are sending abroad.

Not an American contract has yet been secured. It was pointed out, however, that the heavy premium which British buyers must pay gives every indication, in the opinion of local bankers, that the conditions will follow unless rates are rectified soon, and that there will be a decided slump in new orders.

MISSING FIFTEEN YEARS, SCHOOLMASTER IS FOUND

Mystery Surrounds Motive for Thomas Powell's Sudden Flight

(By Associated Press.)
NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Aug. 31.—The mysterious disappearance from this city fifteen years ago of Thomas Temple Powell, then superintendent of the city schools, former member of the general assembly, was cleared up today when Edward Halverin, formerly a resident of Newport News, but now employed in the customs house at Manila, P. I., stated that the missing man is employed in the same office as himself, and has been there since shortly after the time he disappeared.

Mr. Powell left here in the midst of the school term for a trip to New York. He failed to return and gave apprehension as to his fate was felt by his friends. Eventually a committee of citizens was dispatched to New York to investigate and ascertain, if possible, his whereabouts. The committee's efforts were in vain; no trace of the superintendent could be found, and it was concluded that he had put with foul play.

Mr. Powell's action in dropping out of sight and never communicating with his friends and relatives here cannot be explained, as there was no known reason for his sudden flight. He had no family here at the time.

Lightning Flash
Stuns Boy, Kills
Woman At Adel

ADEL, Ga., Aug. 31.—Mrs. Jim Hodges, of Adel, was instantly killed this afternoon while standing her yard by a flash of lightning which struck a sycamore tree, under which she was standing. She was a Miss Grady before her marriage. Her husband and four small children survive her.

A thirteen-year-old lawsuit that has knotted around the field and estate courts until the interest on the amount sued for almost equals the principal, was decided Tuesday by Judge Newman of the federal court, who mailed his decision from North Carolina, where he is spending his vacation.

The suit was brought by the Proctor Coal company against the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, a Maryland corporation, in 1902 for $5,900 claimed by the defendant for C. M. Stanton, local manager of the coal company at that time, to sign checks for the company in his accounts over $5,000.

The bonding concern alleged as its defense that the coal company had agreed, when the bond was made, that Stanton was to sign checks for the company as it was, but that afterward it changed the rule and permitted the manager to sign checks for the company.

Judge Newman decided in favor of the bonding company.

Town Springs Up In Alaskan Wilds Within 6 Months

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Growth of the new Alaskan railroad construction terminus at Anchorage, Alaska, from a wilderness six months ago to a city of 3,000 population today, with big government really transactions to take care of the influx of people is told in telegraphic reports to the interior department.

Commissioner Tallman, of the general land office, received a message from Chief Field Agent Christensen, saying that in addition to a recent sale of 600 lots on government domain at Anchorage at a total price of $145,000, 300 more lots were sold Saturday at a total of $23,000. The site is one of the termini of the new government railway from Seward to Fairbanks, for which congress already has appropriated $1,000 out of a prospective outfit of $2,000,000.

U. S. FIDELITY CO. WINS
13-YEAR-OLD LAW SUIT Amount of Interest Nearly Equals Sum Sued for by Proctor Coal Co.

A thirteen-year-old lawsuit that has knotted around the field and estate courts until the interest on the amount sued for almost equals the principal, was decided Tuesday by Judge Newman of the federal court, who mailed his decision from North Carolina, where he is spending his vacation.

The suit was brought by the Proctor Coal company against the United States Fidelity and Guaranty company, a Maryland corporation, in 1902 for $5,900 claimed by the defendant for C. M. Stanton, local manager of the coal company at that time, to sign checks for the company in his accounts over $5,000.

The bonding concern alleged as its defense that the coal company had agreed, when the bond was made, that Stanton was to sign checks for the company as it was, but that afterward it changed the rule and permitted the manager to sign checks for the company.

Judge Newman decided in favor of the bonding company.

PAN-AMERICAN PEACE APPEALS ALL DELIVERED

Conferees Probably Will Wait Until Next Week for Replies

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The pan-American peace appeal has been delivered to all military and political leaders in Mexico. Several leaders in remote sections have just been reached by the appeals, and to give them time for reply there probably will be no meeting of the pan-American conferees until next week.

General Carranza's reply still is lacking, but it has been authoritatively declared that the conferees will proceed irrespective of his attitude.

Major General Scott, chief of staff of the army, conferred with Secretary Lansing today and reported the result of his conference with General Villa and other northern Mexicans. General Scott said Villa and General Huerta were sincerely anxious for peace.

General Villa, said General Scott, "is earnestly desirous for peace in Mexico and he is willing to sacrifice any personal ambitions and to eliminate himself if necessary in order to bring it about."

General Carranza, a colonel in the Carranza army of typhoid fever in the City of Mexico last Saturday, according to reports received at Carranza headquarters in Nuevo Laredo today.

TONNAGE TAXES LARGER THAN IN OVER 30 YEARS Department of Commerce Announces Aggregate Sum is $1,314,916
(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Tonnage taxes collected by the entry of American and foreign vessels in the foreign commerce of the United States during the fiscal year ended June 30 were the largest in over thirty years, aggregating $1,314,916, the department of commerce announced today. This is $41,677 more than the previous fiscal year.
British and French ships paid $729, 494 or 55.9 per cent more than during the previous year. German ships, which paid $184,414 in 1914, this year paid only $25, 471, nearly all of which was paid in July and early August, 1914. American ships paid $104,726, compared with $77, 445 in 1914. The increase being due mainly to the ship registry act and the government war risk insurance on American ships.
The increased receipts from American,
British, Scandinavian, Spanish, Italian and Japanese ships made good the loss of revenue from German and Austrian ships.
Revenue from tonnage taxes, contrary to expectations, has remained undiminished in spite of the European war, owing principally to the great reduction of the immigrant traffic and less pleasure travel.

CLAIMS TO LANDS
WILL BE PASSED ON
(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Millions of dollars worth of land in the Imperial valley of California, that were withheld long ago by the reclamation service, involving many claims of squatters, are to be adjudicated soon by the interior department. The claimants asserted that they were entitled to the land by what they regarded as assurances from department officials to believe that if it was held in long term, the lands would become their.
Government agents have investigated these claims and Commissioner Tallman, chief of the general land office, is reviewing the evidence. He was shortly to report to Secretary Lane and it is understood that it will show that while a number of cases for squatters actually involved the lands there were few instances of the kind that were claimed.

TODAY'S EVENING STORY

THEIR SON

(Copyright, 1935, by W. Werner.)

SHE had arisen at the latest moment, taken all the time there was to dress, swallowed a cup of coffee, posted at her aunt, whose kindness gave her a home, and lagged forth to her day's work yawning, for a moving picture show had kept her up late the night before. There were a thousand girls just like her abroad that morning going unprepared and unwilling to their day's work in the store and office. It had been raining overnight and the streets were damp and slippery. Marie skidded along on her flimsy, high heeled shoes, paused twice to look at windows, where were displayed things she wanted, and arrived at her destination late.

Her destination was a quiet little book store, which catered to a thoughtful public. As Marie entered the proprietor was just arranging a shelf, work which was supposed to be a part of her business. He was a young man, only a few years older than Marie, dark, rather pale and with a splendid chin. His eyes looked a little weak behind the spectacles. He was the only person in the store besides Miss Briggs, the elderly stock taker, and an old man who unpacked books, washed the windows, swept and dusted. His glance at his watch was significant, but he said nothing. Marie, however, felt his silent reproach and with quickened color passed to the little coat room, where she hung up her coat, huge muff and gay hat. The glass revealed the fact that she needed more powder and she applied it from a silver vanity box. Having acquired what she considered to be the proper marshmallow effect, she sauntered forth to take her place behind the counter.

For some time she had nothing to do but attend to her nails and stare out of the window. She felt very unhappy. At twenty-three she seemed to have exhausted life. She hated moving pictures and her salary would not allow her any other form of entertainment. Her aunt did not agree with her.

Miss Briggs was cold and her employer, who was only Jim Emery, whom she had gone to school with, treated her with noticeable disregard. It came to her that she could have endured all the rest, but his evident disapproval gnawed not only at her pride but at her heart as well. Since that far off time when he had brought her cookies and molasses candy at school he had been the one thing in all the world which was her truly worth while. She could have married twice at least, but she preferred to go on working. From place to place she had migrated until at last she had come to the book store. Jim's father had hired her before he retired and Jim was keeping her because he hated to turn her away.

She was listlessly stacking some books on the counter when a girl entered. From the back of the store Jim had seen her and was hastening forward to wait on her. She was a tall girl with the light of morning in her face. Her tailored suit was very dark and she wore a scent Marie realized that she was a finer quality than herself.

"The Life of Scott?" she thought as she overheard the girl's question. "What a strange book for her to read! And how plain she is. Yet Jim admires her. I wonder who she is. I must ask Miss Briggs. She'll know. She knows everything—or thinks she does. Goodness! What a lot of books she's buying! And she's going to have them sent home—all but that one, 'The Life of Scott.' I wonder what it's like."

After the girl had been shown out by Jim, Marie took down a volume of Lock-

After the girl had been shown out by Jim, Marie took down a volume of Lockhart and looked at it.

"I believe I'd like this if I ever get time to read," she thought. "I used to be wild over a book like this. She signed it. What was the use now, at twenty-three she seemed to have exhausted life. She hated moving pictures and her salary would not allow her any other form of entertainment. Her aunt did not agree with her."

At noon she left the store with Miss Briggs. They sometimes lunched together.

"Who was the girl in blue?" she asked.

"That was Miss Mary Andrews," answered Miss Briggs, and she relished the effect of her words, for Marie gasped. "Mary Andrews! The millionaire's daughter! Did you observe how she was dressed?" went on Miss Briggs.

"I never saw a more ladylike appearance. Strange that it is only the rich girls who affect simplicity. I suppose they want to be as different as possible from that class of girls who doctor up their names, load themselves with jewelry, perfume and smudge, their poor faces becoming very severe and she leaned over me some advice whether you thank me for it or not," she said. "The experienced eyes and I see things with them. Mr. Emery is a very kind-hearted young man, like his father before him, but your time is going to be extremely limited in his store unless you adopt different methods. You are always late, you are neglectful, you dress absurdly and you don't know one book from another. There's only one end to me, but down at bottom I believe you are a good, honest girl with plenty of brains if only your appearance did not belie you." She rose quietly and went out, leaving Marie sitting there with a scarlet face.

It was the first time that Marie had ever heard the truth about herself, and it was bitter but beneficial. She felt that Miss Briggs was right. She would lose her position and not only that but the respect of the man she cared for.

Marie had a terrible night, and a terrible day while the antitoxin worked. Then she began to see clearly. The next morning she telephoned an excuse for not appearing at the store and went shopping.

That afternoon punctually at one o'clock she entered the store. She wore a black coat suit, a little black velvet hat and a plain black silk blouse with dainty lawn collar and cuffs. Her jewelry was gone, her powder was gone, her pretty fair hair was closely knotted. She did not look like the same girl. And she was twenty times more attractive. At her typewriter Miss Briggs saw and chuckled. Jim Emery stared. When he called her Marie, she corrected him gently.

"Mary—Mary Smith," she said.

Within a month it was evident that Marie Smythe was gone forever and Mary Smith had come to stay. Mary Smith was always punctual. Mary Smith began to know a great deal about books. Mary Smith was unobtrusively dainty in appearance, courteous, and obliging. Mary Smith's eyes were bright in the morning because she went to bed early, in training for the morning's fatigue.

It was hard at first.

Miss Briggs began to feel an interest in the girl.

"You're going to do it. I know you could," she said. And she put her arm about Marie. "That's why I took the trouble to tell you the truth. My dear, I went through the same experience and I never regretted that I did what I am instead of what I started out to do."

"You're the best friend I ever had," Marie said. "I thank you, Miss Briggs. I'm in a great deal happier now than I've ever been before in my life."

And she was. It began now to look as if she were to be happier still. But that is another story.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Several Office and Store Leases Are Announced by the Atlanta Realty Corporation, Owners of the Hurt Building and Other Properties—August Building Shy About $4,000 Still—Candler Warehouse Work Starts Soon

Several leases were announced Tuesday by the Atlanta Realty Corporation, owners of the Hurt building and other property in that vicinity.

In the Hurt building, one office on the fourth floor was rented to Rhet & O'Brien, three on the eighth floor to Dr. Francis J. Jones; three on the sixth to the International Agricultural Corporation (additional space); three on the fourth floor to the Wolcott Remedy company, amounting to sixteenth.

The company announced that the Hurt building was getting 12 1/2 per cent of the full renting revenue, showing that space is being taken freely.

Other leases by the company were to a store at 68 Edgewood avenue to the Adams Millinery company; and two stores at No. 5 and 10 Gilmer street to Colgate & Co.

MONTH'S BUSINESS. Somewhere in Atlanta there must be a builder or contractor with heart and civic pride enough to produce at least a $4,000 building permit by night. Otherwise the August value will fall short of last August by just that figure.

A permit for the high school on South Pryor street, to cost $50,000, and another for the Mutual Realty company's apartment house on Forrest avenue, to cost $45,000, were issued Tuesday, but with these the month's value is slightly over $250,000, compared with over $372,000 last August.

It is to be hoped that somebody will come to the rescue during the afternoon.

WAREHOUSE PLANS. A representative of Arthur Turf, architect for the Candler warehouse project, was at the building inspector's office on Monday inquiring about the formalities connected with taking out permits.

He was given some application blanks and said that work of construction would be started at once if it is planned to begin receiving cotton by October 15, and as the buildings are to be of concrete, work will have to be pushed.

RESIDENCE SALES. The Martin-Ochsler Realty company sold for J. P. Williams his eight-room bungalow on a lot 50x150 at No. 155 Westminster drive, in Wesley Park. The consideration was $4,000 cash.

The same agency sold for W. B. Dier a residence on Clark street, 25x100 feet, at 184 Clark avenue. The price was $1,750.

Norway, Stung By Submarines, Kicks to England

(By Associated Press.) CHRISTIANIA, Norway, Aug. 31.—Norwegian ship owners complain bitterly against the practice of English warships in forcing Norwegian vessels bound for Norway to put back to a British port. In many cases these Norwegian ships have been outside of the war zone, and their being forced to return to British ports they have been the victims of German submarines. Had the vessels been left alone by the British ships they would have reached their home port safely.

Protests from Norway to England have been met by the answer that the British government will hold itself responsible for Norwegian shipping that is treated in this manner, but the Norwegian owners continue to see their ships destroyed.

The question has become especially acute since the Norwegian-American line steamer Tromsø was torpedoed by a German submarine July 31. An English cruiser had stopped the steamer, put a prize crew on board and directed the vessel's course to Kirkwall, when the torpedoing occurred. The Norwegian press complaining against the British admiralty assert that the steamer was loaded in New York under the supervision of three inspectors from Norway to the effect of the ship had no other cargo than what the papers showed.

The papers showed that the ship was loaded with German goods, and among the ship's papers was an affidavit from the consul to the effect that the ship had no other cargo than what the papers showed.
